

Freedom of speech, free enterprise all mean to me that the government must not intervene on the behalf of one business to the detriment of another. What right does the NAB have to make such a request of the federal government? Since I installed XM radio I listen to little local broadcast radio. This simply because of the services they provide are far superior to local broadcastl radio.

If the NAB wants me to listen more to local radio, then provide the content I enjoy listening to. They would simply deny me my rights if they have their way.
